'Table Lamp Pleated for Frank' by Folkform, approx £1,060 for lamp and shade, Svenskt Tenn (svenskitenn.com)

Pleats, please

Pleats are all the rage at the moment – they've been seen on everything from Emma Gurner's textural collection for British lighting brand House Of to Skrt London's desirable bed valances. The style, which the late Issey Miyake employed so brilliantly in fashion, began filtering into homeware and furniture at the tail end of last year with creatives including Paola Navone producing designer crimped pieces, such as her 'Plissé Table' for Midj (below). Since then, designers have given materials like steel and glass the folding treatment, proving that pleats needn't be constrained to garments on the runway.
